Introduction

THE PART WHICH HEREDITY PLAYS IN THE PHYSICAL, mental, and moral constitution of an individual is of vital importance. This fact has long been recognized and applied in horticulture, agriculture, animal husbandry, and kindred sciences; but man has been slow to apply it in his own case.

The science of genetics is clearing the way for a more exact knowledge of the laws and mechanisms of heredity, and eugenics has organized our knowledge of the influences that work for the improvement of the race.

So far as the average man is concerned, however, he is at a great disadvantage in applying the known laws of racial improvement to his own particular case. The majority of Americans know little or nothing concerning their ancestral lines, and unfortunately many care still less. In the case of those who earnestly desire to improve their inherent capabilities there is frequently no foundation on which they can build their efforts, since there exists no record of their forebears.

Ralph E. Danforth, writing in the Scientific Monthly for August, 1928, has aptly said—"There is no excuse for allowing any good hereditary gift to lie unused or only half developed. He who practices well the faculty of selection . . . will search thoroughly his own physical, mental and spiritual make-up to see if there is not some good quality or possibility within him which he may have overlooked. . . . Here also he will be aided by research into his pedigree, or the performance of his ancestors, which may call his attention to inherited characters within himself. This may show him a reflection of himself from a new angle. At the least he will be honoring his father and mother by taking the pains to find out about them, and about their fathers and mothers, as far back as faithful search can reveal anything. It is a respect which everybody owes his forebears. Let it not be put off, then, with that trite and flippant excuse for human indolence, 'Oh, I am not at all interested in genealogy.' "

The first requisite for an intelligent study of human heredity is a genealogy, or rather, many genealogies, since it is necessary to survey ancestral lines on both the father's and mother's sides in a radiating pattern.

It is realized that the average genealogy is of very little help in analyzing hereditable characters. There is little record in such works bearing on the physical and mental characteristics of those who are listed. There is seldom to be found a statement as to the cause of death. Mental defects are infrequently if ever mentioned. Hereditary physical defects are not divulged. About all that may be gathered is fragmentary data as to longevity, multiparity, and mental capacities as judged by scholarly or professional accomplishments.

All that the average genealogy can offer is a bare foundation, on which each investigator must build the superstructure of more intimate and detailed information concerning his or her direct ancestral line. This data should be recorded and made a part of the records that are passed on to descendants.

This book is no exception to the rule so far as lack of information bearing on heredity is concerned. It is a compilation, and one that has of necessity been greatly condensed. It is further limited, as are all genealogies, by the fact that families will not divulge any information that bears on the frailties of its members.

The first genealogical work of importance on the Comstock family was published by General Cyrus Ballou Comstock in 1905. It was entitled "A Comstock Genealogy. Some Descendants of Samuel Comstock of Providence, R. I.", and was limited in its scope to the descendants of Samuel[2], son of William[1] Comstock of New London. In it were listed 602 families, not all of whom were Comstocks, since the families of some of the married daughters were included. The individual Comstocks listed numbered 2,170.

This work was followed in 1907 by "A Comstock Genealogy. Descendants of William Comstock of New London, Conn." Included in this volume were 925 families, and 5,097 individual Comstocks.

Both of these books have long been out of print and are as rare as "dragon's teeth."

The labor and research that General Comstock put into these works was prodigious. They represent the fountain head to which all future genealogists in the family must turn for the fundamental facts of our history.

The most active amateur genealogist in the family is Samuel Willett Comstock, now of Devon, Connecticut. For many years he traveled widely in the States, and abroad, painstakingly checking on all sources that would give accurate data on the Comstock family. His examinations included census, probate, cemetery, church, and vital statistical records, personal conferences with living Comstocks, and descendants, and numerous other sources. He was thus able to accumulate a large amount of unpublished information, particularly of the earlier families, which he has generously shared with the compiler of this book.

The present work represents some twenty years of investigation and correspondence directed particularly to the completion of the record of later generations. It has entailed the preparation of a card index gleaned from all available directories, and the circularizing of all living Comstocks whose names were obtainable, with questionnaires and follow-up letters. In addition, large numbers of genealogies of other families, and numerous histories of towns, cities, counties and states have been fine-tooth combed for Comstock references.

The result has made possible the listing of 2,230 families and in excess of 10,200 individuals bearing the name of Comstock.

This total falls far short of the actual number of descendants of William[1] Comstock. The record runs through twelve generations, and in the course of its unfolding, hundreds, perhaps thousands of names have dropped by the wayside as a consequence of inadequately kept records. The author has in his files the names of several hundreds who can not be placed in this book because of insufficient data on their Comstock ancestry.

Even as it stands, however, it represents a family that is far more prolific than the average, and that has consistently maintained its rate of increase from colonial times down to the present. This may be accounted for mainly by the fact that it is, and for the past twelve generations has been, predominantly composed of farmers and rural dwellers. Country life conduces to large and healthy families.

The factor of heredity may also enter the picture, because the sturdy English stock from which it was derived was apparently virile and adaptive, and for the first few generations in America its members were intermarrying with other families of a like character.

In other respects it is a typical American family of English-New England origin such as one sees in numerous genealogies. It has a due proportion of professional men, doctors, lawyers, engineers, scientists, and teachers. It can boast of statesmen, financiers, generals, judges, writers, and artists, or it may feel a sense of shame over its misfits, failures, and even law-evaders, such as are bound to show up in every family history that is honestly written. Taken by and large, it is the sort of family that has helped to make America the strong and progressive democracy that it is.

It will be noted that the current addresses of living members of the family are given whenever they were obtainable. This may not be a feature that will endure in usefulness for long, since our populations of this generation are continuously on the move, and directories soon become obsolete. These addresses have been included, however, because it is felt that they may serve for a time to bring relatives into closer contact, encourage greater family unity and solidarity, and stimulate the keeping of more accurate records.

The author has in his files several hundreds of photographs of Comstocks, only a few of which it has been possible to use in this book. Those which have not been reproduced will be bound in a special volume, together with others that may later be secured, and this volume will be given to the Library of the Sons of the American Revolution at Washington, D. C. With it will also go a master set of the Comstock records. It will be our hope and effort to add additional data and photographs to this collection so that it may function as a central repository for the benefit of future generations. To this end, members of our family are urged to keep in contact with the author, and to send him photographs, or records of changes in their particular branch of the family.

Acknowledgements

In addition to the invaluable help received from Samuel Willett Comstock, there have been many members of the family who have furnished up-to-date information on their particular families.

Dr. Elizabeth Comstock of Arcadia, Wisconsin, has been most helpful with data on the Noah Durham Comstock line, and with notes and comments on General Cyrus Ballou Comstock. Professor Ernest Bernard Comstock of Dallas, Texas, has supplemented the information contained in his excellent booklet, "Comstock Lineage," by many informative letters bearing on his line and others. Dr. John Moore Comstock of Chelsea, Vermont, furnished a wealth of material on the descendants of Samuel[6] Comstock of Douglas, Massachusetts. The late Edgar DeWitt Comstock of St. Charles, Illinois, for many years furnished a record of the changes occurring in his branch of the family. The help of many others is acknowledged throughout the body of the book.

Above all others, the sacrifices in time and energy of the author's wife, Ruth Gard Comstock, are responsible for the sustained prosecution and completion of this work. For twenty years she has inspired, encouraged, and actively assisted the effort; and the major part of the index is her personal contribution.

Origin of the Name

COMSTOCK IS A PLACE NAME. ITS DERIVATION undoubtedly traces to a village in Devonshire, England, called Culmstock which is located on the River Culm some ten miles east of Tiverton and an equal distance south of Taunton.

The town of Culmstock, in Devonshire, England.

In the year 1900 this village had a population of 869, which is about the same number that resided there in the time of the Domesday Book, wherein the village is mentioned as Colmstocke.

The village probably derived its name from the fact that in mediaeval times it was customary to erect 'stocks' or stockades around rural communities as a protection against wolves and marauders. This particular stockade being located on the River Culm or Colm came to be designated Colmstocke or Culmstock.

In considering the origin of family names, it must be borne in mind that surnames in England did not become permanent or hereditary until the Eleventh or Twelfth Centuries. Prior to that, a man's given name came to have the additional designation of his vocation such as John (the) Smith or Robert (the) Cooper, or one might be known from the place of his origin, as Thomas de Mille or Peter de Culmstock. Frequently the de (=of) was dropped as superfluous.

It is not surprising, therefore, to find records in the parish Registers of the small towns of Devonshire and Somersetshire, not far from Culmstock, of such names as Petro de Columstock, 1241; John de Culmstok, 1189; Robert de Culmstok, 1189.

General Cyrus B. Comstock, in his introduction to the Genealogy of 1907, gives a number of references to early Priors of Taunton: "Richard de Colmstoke, elected 1325; Ralph de Colmstoke, elected 1331."

Samuel Willett Comstock, in his extensive researches in England, found records of some 122 early Comstocks, including that of a family at Timberscombe in the first year of the reign of Richard 1 (1189), wherein is named John de Culmstok, his wife Alice, and son Robert. This is the earliest known reference to the name as applied to persons.

During the period of settlement of New England the name of Comstock, while not common in the mother country was represented there. C. B. Comstock notes several records as of that period from the parish Register of Stoke St. Gregory, nineteen miles from Culmstock: "Thomas, son of Thomas Coomstocke baptised ye 30 day Oct. 1636; John, son of Thomas Coomstocke baptised ye 18 day Sept. 1646; Thomas Cumstoke was buried 30 Sept. 1658.", and from the burials of the Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, London: "Mariana Combstocke, 30 Nov. 1595; Joannes Combstocke, 26 Aug. 1597; Johannes Comstock, 1 Nov. 1603."

It is interesting to note that the name of Comstock has now practically died out in England, whereas it is represented in the United States by thousands of living members. An examination made about 1895, at the Somerset House, London, of the Record of Births in England and Wales, showed scarcely one birth per year.

A number of traditions and erroneous statements concerning the origin of the name of Comstock, and of the family, have had wide circulation.

The most commonly accepted of these is a story of the German origin of the family, which is intimately bound up with the supposed genesis of the Coat of Arms.

This myth is to the effect that there existed in the Muniment office at Frankfort, Germany, the record of pedigrees of nine generations of Komstohks prior to Charles Von Komstohk, a Baron of the Roman Empire, who escaped to England in 1547 because of his being implicated with other noblemen of Austria and Silesia in the von Benedict treason.

General C. B. Comstock made careful search at Frankfort-on-the-Main, and at Breslau, without finding any trace or reference to Baron Von Komstohk, or of a von Benedict treason.

Samuel Willett Comstock states in a letter dated Jan. 20, 1933 concerning this story, that he ". . . personally investigated it in Germany, Scotland and England, and nothing of the sort was ever heard of there."

Another story that has been widely publicized suggests a Danish origin, based on the supposed derivation of the name from the Danish word "kom", meaning a dock or wharf, and "stock" signifying a stick of timber.

Many members of the family give credence to the theory of a Welch origin. This probably arises from the fact that some early references to Christopher

The town of Culmstock viewed from the river Culm.

Comstock of Norwalk speak of him as a Welchman. The advocates of this theory point to the motto on the Comstock Coat of Arms, which is in the Welch language, in support of their belief. The true facts in connection with this Coat of Arms are dealt with in a separate chapter, and serve to disprove both the Welch and German theories of origin.

A summary of all evidence points strongly toward that part of England lying to the south of the Bristol Channel as having given origin to the family. Samuel Willett Comstock has probably given more painstaking study to this matter than any other genealogist, and it is of interest to note that one of his letters states in part, "I do think from a survey of that country with only two records of William found, that our William went from London to Yeovil or Cussy Rival and raised his family there. Yeovil parish registers 1620-1640 have not so far as I know been published and I think it may possibly contain them, as there was a Danyell Comstock near by, in town of Closworth, Somerset County, 1614 and 1615."

The little village of Culmstock in Devonshire takes on a special significance to members of the Comstock family in view of the above, and some facts concerning it are worthy of recording.

Its history really began with the purchase by the Mother Church at Exeter of the parish and the erection of a church there in approximately the year 600 A.D. About the year 900 the present All Saints Church was built, and enlargements were made to it some two hundred years later.

All Saints Church in Culmstock, showing a yew tree at the top. The roots of this tree start in the ground inside the tower.

The Register begins in 1645. There are Wesleyan and Baptist parishes there. The accompanying picture of the church, taken only a few years ago, shows a yew tree growing out of one of the windows in the tower. The roots of this tree start in the ground inside the tower. The old burying ground about this church is very impressive.

The Kennels of the Otter Hounds are situated at Culmstock. This pack must be one of the oldest in Great Britain, dating back to about 1790 when it was formed by Mr. Jewell Collier, who held the Mastership forty-one years. The pack remained in the control of the Collier family for over a hundred years. It has the distinction, too, of being one of the few Otter Hunts in the country to sport the scarlet uniform. Mention is made of this in Henry Williamson's book, Tarka the Otter.

The Comstock Coat of Arms

FOR SEVERAL GENERATIONS A CONSIDERABLE NUMBER of members of the Comstock family in America have used, as an insignia, the coat of arms that is illustrated in the accompanying plate.

There are many variations of this design in existence, but most of them retain in one form or another the elements that are here reproduced,—a shield bearing a sword pointing downward into a crescent, flanked by two bears. The shield is surmounted by a crowned helmet from which issues an elephant. In a few instances the helmet is missing. Usually there is a scroll at the base on which is inscribed in Welch, "Nid cyfoeth ond boddlondeb" (frequently misspelled boddlondeh). Translated, this is Not wealth but contentment. In some examples the same motto occurs in Latin, "Non divitia sed felicitas". In another series, the motto reads "Animo et fide" (With resolution and fidelity).

It is interesting to note that the motto "Nid cyfoeth ond boddlondeb" is the same as that given for GARNONS, County Herts, and HARNHILL, County Gloucester, as recorded in Burke's General Armory.

In the parlance of heraldry the coat of arms is described as follows:

"Arms; or, (gold) a sword point downward, issuing from a crescent in base gules (red), between two bears rampant sable (black).
Crest; an elephant rampant proper, issuing out of a baron's coronet."
The elephant is indicative of personal prowess and sagacity.
The bears symbolize courage.
The sword and crescent indicate participation in the Crusades.

The family name, when it occurs underneath the motto, is frequently spelled KOMSTOHK, which would indicate that the originators of this particular version of the coat of arms had accepted the story of the supposed German origin of the family. This belief has been built up partly as a result of the rather wide circulation within the family of the Scotch marriage record and list of descendants of one Frederick Komstohk, reproduced herein together with the story mentioned in the previous chapter concerning the pedigree of nine generations of Komstohks that is said to be in the Muniment Office at Frankfort-on-Main.

The original of this record was on parchment. It will be noted that the coat of arms is essentially the same as the one illustrated on the accompanying colored plate except for the absence of the elephant rampant.

A free translation of this record recites that:

"Frederick Komstohk was born in Frankfort-on-Main, Free Wealthy City of Germany, in the year of our Lord and most Holy Jesus Christ on March 18th, 1575.
Frederick Komstohk and Mary McDonald were united in Holy Matrimony at Edinburgh, Scotland, January 2nd in the year of our Lord 1611.

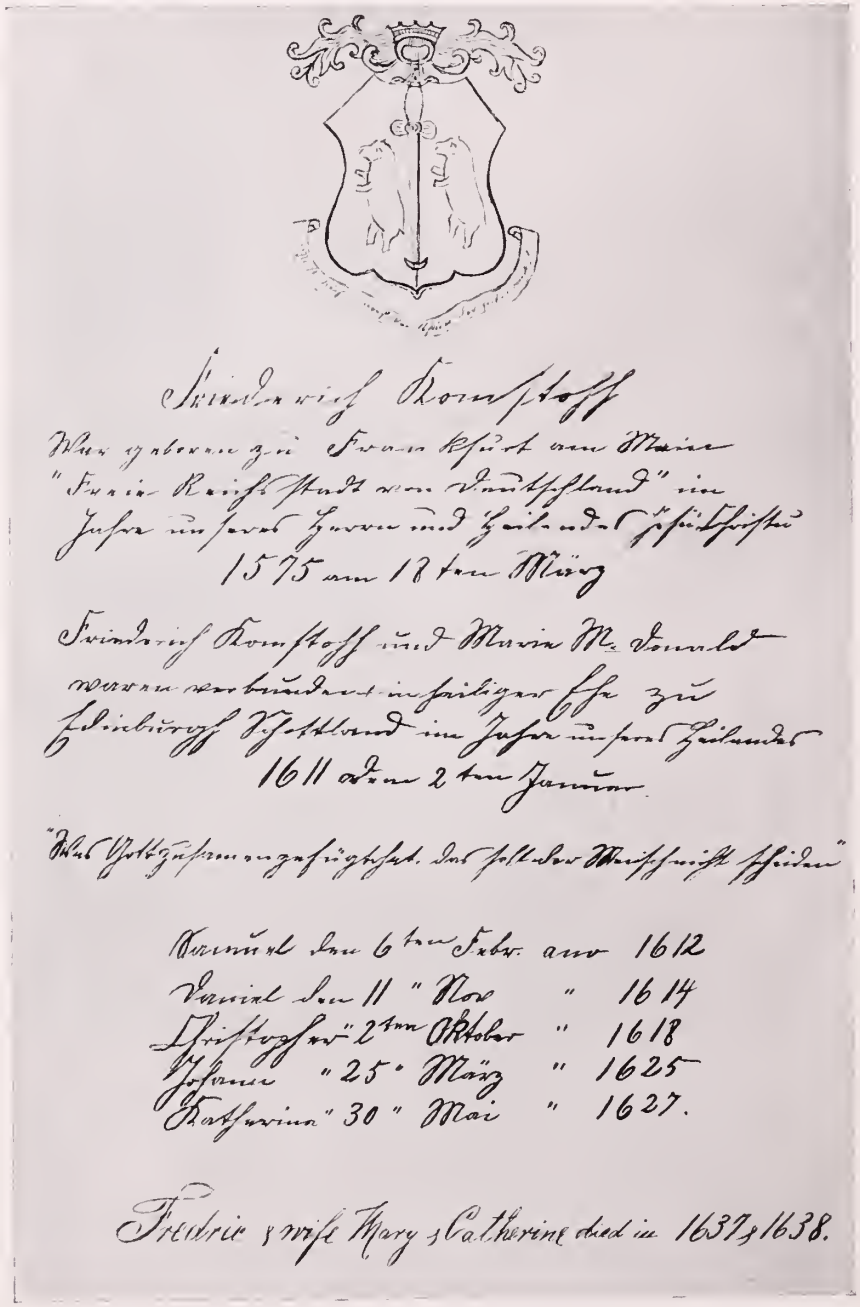
Those Whom God has Joined together, let no man put asunder.

Samuel.....6th of February, 1612

Daniel.....11th of November, 1614 John.....25th of March, 1625

Christopher.....2nd of October, 1618 Katherine.....30th of May, 1627

Frederick and wife Mary, and Katherine died in 1637 and 1638"



Samuel Willett Comstock comments in a letter concerning this strange document that ". . . the writing is in new, not old German, which proves it's a fake".

Several of the works on American Armory, notably Matthew's American Armoury and Blue Book (p. 22), Crozier's General Armory (p. 42), and Bolton's American Armory (p. 38), give this coat of arms and lineage, and certain Comstocks are listed as descending from Frederick. It is significant, however, that the standard works on armory of the British Isles, such as Burke's General Armory, contain no mention of a Comstock coat of arms, and the latest Burke's Landed Gentry, which contains both English and American names, gives no reference to the family.

Many Americans have traveled in England, Scotland, Wales, and Germany, searching particularly for such evidence. Doubtless the Registers of the College of Arms and the several Kings of Arms have been diligently searched without avail.

The preponderant weight of evidence seems to prove that this particular coat of arms is not authentic. S. W. Comstock (quoted above) has probably given more careful study to this subject than any other living member of the family. He visited England, Scotland, and Germany, making particular inquiry from the proper authorities and was unable to find any record of a Comstock coat of arms. It is his opinion that the emblem was ". . . born in Hartford, Connecticut, in 1849" and he attributes it to Dr. J. L. C. probably referring to Dr. John Lee Comstock, profound scholar of his time, and a gentleman who was doubtless possessed of a keen sense of humor.

Although it is unlikely that an authentic Comstock coat of arms will be later turned up, nevertheless the last word has yet to be written on the subject. There are still several avenues of investigation to be pursued.

The writer possesses a post card written originally to General Cyrus B. Comstock, and signed with the rubber stamp of George C. Martin, of New York City, Dealer in Genealogical and Heraldic Books, Ancient Engravings and Paintings of Coats of Arms. It is dated Feb. 5, 1908, and reads:

> "Dear Sir, I have just received from England a rare old engraving of the arms of the Comstock family engraved and printed in the year 1753. The price is $2.00. If interested I would be pleased to send same to you on approval. This is a very interesting family relic."

At the foot of the post card General Comstock wrote in pencil "Went to see it and girl could not find it."

Evidently the General did not pursue the matter further.

Perhaps a copy of that engraving will some day find its way into the Comstock family archives and throw additional light on the subject.

There is also to be considered the statement in the will of Samuel[5] Comstock (Family 131) giving to the Church at Wilton, Connecticut ". . . a tankard descended through a long line of venerable ancestors," which contained a coat of arms. This tankard was melted down for bulk silver by the church authorities, and the record of its decoration lost to posterity.

It is not definitely stated that this was a Comstock coat of arms, although that is presumed to be the case. It may have been the coat armor of some collateral family that earlier married into the Christopher Comstock line. We can only hope that all the facts may later come to light. Samuel[5] Comstock was descended from Christopher[2] Comstock, who was supposed, or at least traditionally was reported, to have come from Wales. That fact may have prompted the use of a Welch motto by the originator of the present Coat of Arms.

The use of coat armor in the British Isles is governed by law, and carries with it certain privileges and responsibilities. The complicated regulations and customs associated with it have a background of history, tradition, and ritual which finds no counterpart in the new world. Much that is associated with heraldry had its genesis in the laws and customs of feudal days, and is deeply rooted in the rigid class and caste distinctions, and in the laws of primogeniture that are a part of the English social system.

In a democratic government such as that of the United States of America there is obviously no place for an equivalent use of heraldic emblems. Coat armor has no standing under American law because there is no need for it in our social system.

When an American family uses a coat of arms it therefore has a totally different significance than that which obtains in the old world, if indeed it has any meaning at all.

Chiefly it is used as a family symbol, or as an indication of the country of origin of the family. Frequently it serves no other purpose than to grace the stationery of its owner.

In the case of a few American families, descended from landed or titled foreign forebears who had the right to the use of coat armor, it indicates direct descent from some more or less illustrious ancestor. Unfortunately, a coat of arms may be adopted and used when only a similarity of names occurs and no proof can be given of direct descent from the one to whom it was originally granted.

Some Americans disparage the use of coats of arms, asserting that it engenders class distinction and ideas of hereditary aristocracy. But respect for one's ancestors may well lead to emulation of their good qualities and avoidance of their weaknesses, and prove to be an inspiration for accomplishment.

The early colonial settlers of America were predominantly commoners, craftsmen, and tillers of the soil. Their deeds prove them to have been of stalwart, moral, and industrious calibre. They passed on to us a worthy heritage.

The first Comstocks were of this sturdy stock possessing sufficient nobility, when judged by New World standards, to justify a reasonable pride in their achievements. If we choose to use a coat of arms as a symbol of that collective achievement, even if the emblem be of unofficial origin, there is no law or custom to forbid it. If it is honestly used, without pretense or false assumption, there may be a bit of virtue in it. It well might encourage greater family solidarity and integrity.

Directions For Tracing Your Lineage In This Book

THE COMPLETE NAME, THE FAMILY NUMBER, AND the Individual number of the father, or head of each family, is listed in the alphabetical index at the back of the book.

Starting with the name of the Head of a desired Family,

1. Check index and locate name in the text.
2. Note individual number which precedes Head of Family name.
3. Turn back in the book until you find again the individual number and name, where it is listed in its first preceding, or father's family.
4. Note individual number of father's name.
5. Again turn back in the book to find father's individual number, where it is listed in grandfather's family.
6. Using grandfather's individual number, again turn back in the book to find, similarly, grandfather's individual number and name, where it is listed in great-grandfather's family.

By continuing to check numbers in this manner, a desired Family line may be traced back to William[1] Comstock, Family 1, the founder of the Comstock Family in America.

You will have observed that the first name of each Head of a family is followed by a small numeral. This indicates the generation that he represents. If, as an example, this numeral is 8, it means the eighth generation from William[1] Comstock.

Also the name of each Head of a family is followed by a line of names in italics, each name being followed by a small numeral, thus showing the complete ancestral line, generation by generation, back to the founder of the Comstock Family.

If you are the daughter of a Comstock, or an unmarried son, or a son who is childless, the index will give only your Individual number.

Abbreviations

The abbreviations used in this book are standard for nearly all genealogies: b.=born; d.=died; m.=married; dau.=daughter; Res.=residence or resided; bapt.=baptized; y.=year; m.=month.

A History and Genealogy of The Comstock Family in America

Family 1

ABOUT 1635, OR SHORTLY THEREAFTER, THERE CAME from England to the Massachusetts settlements one William Comstock. From whence he sailed, and on what ship, has not been ascertained. It is quite probable that with him were his wife Elizabeth and four, or possibly all five of his children. It is believed that he first sojourned in the vicinity of Watertown, Massachusetts, but that very shortly he transferred to Wethersfield, Connecticut.

It is a matter of record that he held lands on the Connecticut River in Wethersfield in the year 1641, and that these lands had been purchased from one Ric. Milles. Prior to that, he is recorded as having been one of the twenty-six men from Wethersfield in the expedition commanded by Capt. John Mason, that captured the Pequot Fort at Mystic, Connecticut, May 26, 1637, killing about five hundred Indians.

About 1650 he transferred to Pequot, now New London, where he had previously (1647) received a grant of land. At a town meeting held there in November, 1650, he voted to cooperate with John Winthrop to establish a corn mill, and in July 1651 he "Wrought on the mill dam" with Tabor and other inhabitants of New London. The old mill is still in existence.

In 1659 it is recorded that "with consent of my now wife Elizabeth" he sold property in New London. This probably indicates that Elizabeth was a second wife.

On February 25, 1661 or '62, "Old Goodman Comstock" was elected Sexton, "to order youth in the meeting house, sweep the meeting house and beat out dogs," at 40 shillings a year, to dig all graves, and have 4s for a grave for a man or woman, and 2s for children, to be paid by the supervisors.

The date of his death is unknown, but the History of New London states that he lived to old age, on Post Hill near the north corner of Williams and Vauxhall Streets.

Richard Mylls was plaintiff against "Willi Combstocke" and John Sadler, defendants, in an action for slander, Aug. 1, 1644, before the Court of Elections, Hartford, to the damage of 200 pounds.

We have, therefore, as the beginning of our record of the Comstock family in America:

Family 1 § WILLIAM[1] COMSTOCK, born in England about 1595; believed to have died about 1683; married (2nd) Elizabeth Daniel*, b. 1608; d. after 1665.

6. CHRISTOPHER, b. about 1635; d. Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 28, 1702; m. Oct. 6, 1663 Hannah Platt. Family 5.

*In "History of The National Society of Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America" for the fifteenth year, ending May 13, 1913, Mary Ella Comstock (Mrs. Carl J. Vietz) gives the wife of William[1] Comstock as "Elizabeth Daniel."

Family 2 § 2. JOHN[2] COMSTOCK (William[1]) born about 1624; died Lyme, Conn., 1680; married Abigail Chappell, b. Sept. 1, 1644, dau. of George and Christian Chappell. After her husband's death, Abigail married Jan. 18, 1680, Moses Huntley, who was b. July 1, 1654, son of John and Jane Huntley.

John Comstock's name is the first to be mentioned in the family records in America. Savage states that he came to Weymouth, Mass., in 1639 and "sat down at Saybrook, east part." He was probably apprenticed to Henry Russell of Weymouth prior to 1639. Later he was of Lyme, Conn., and was a proprietor there in 1645.

Court records now on file at the State Library, Hartford, show that his estate was settled June 4, 1681, and the widow made administratrix, and "desires Mr. Noyce (Noyes), her father Chappell, and Mr. Edward Shipman assist her."

"Feb. 13, 1666, John Comstock was a signer of Articles of Agreement to the separation of the town of Lyme from Saybrook." (The "Harvey Book," p. 581.)

Quarter Court in Hartford, Conn., 1st Thursday in March, 1655-6; Edward Messenger, plaintiff, contra John Comstock, defendant, in an action of debt to the value of 10 pounds.

Particular Court, Hartford, May 26, 1663, John Comstock, plaintiff, contra Matthew Griswold, defendant, in an action of the case for slandering him in reference to some clapboards, and his wife, in open court, to the damage of 50 pounds.

13. SAMUEL, b. July 6, 1678; d. 1743-4; m. July 5, 1705 Martha Pratt. Family 8.

Family 3 § 3. SAMUEL[2] COMSTOCK (William[1]) born about 1628; died about 1660; married Anne (Tucker?).

Anne was living Feb. 10, 1667. She married (2nd) John Smith, the mason.

The court records of Hartford, Conn., show that "Samuel Comstock gave recognizance March 1, 1648, for ten days of good behavior and for satisfying what damage Mr. Robins shall sustain for the want of his servant."

When, in 1653, war with the Dutch seemed imminent, Samuel went on the "frigott Swallow" to Block Island and seized the goods and people there appertaining to a Dutch Captain Kempo Sybando, and took them to New London, apparently to Gov. John Winthrop.

In the same year Samuel was in Rhode Island.

Samuel Comstock bought of John Smith his house and lot in Providence, R. I., March 1, 1654.

The Town Council of Providence took action about the estate of Samuel Comstock and John Smith, deceased, on March 9, 1660. On May 4, 1661, Anne Smith of Providence, widow of John Smith, formerly wife of Samuel Comstock, deceased, sold to Roger Mowry the house and home share of her husband, Samuel Comstock. It comprised four acres in a row of houses in the north part of Providence.

Mr. W. W. Chapin states that it was near the corner of North Main and Abbott Streets, and probably bounded west by Sexton Street.

Family 4 § 4. DANIEL[2] COMSTOCK (William[1]) born 1630; died New London, Conn., 1683; married about 1653 Paltiah Elderkin who d. Feb. 21, 1713, dau. of John and Abigail (Kingsland) Elderkin.

Calkins (History of Norwich) says John Elderkin, carpenter and miller, the first proprietor of the "Cove," emigrated to America in 1637, coming first to Lynn and then to Dedham. Mr. W. W. Chapin of Providence says he was in Providence about 1650 when Daniel[2] Comstock was there. As Elderkin must have had a family at the time, this would furnish a motive for the migration of Daniel from Providence to New London.

Daniel[2] Comstock, Jan. 29, 1646, acknowledges a free grant of 25 A. from Providence.

Daniel[2] Comstock, Providence, June 24, 1648, and other young men arrested for giving a false Indian alarm.

Benjamin Smith and Dan Cumbstock propound their houses with their land to the town (Providence) for sale June 2, 1655.

Ordered (Providence) that Hen. Neale have a six acre lot laid out to him adjoining to his meadow that he bought of Dan Combstock Jan. 27, 1657.

Dec. 19, 1658, New London has given Daniel Comstock 100 A. of upland by the Sawmill brook.

Daniel Comstock purchased, 1664, a farm at Oxoboro, near Uncasville (Hillhouse Geneal., p. 266) some of which land remained in the family as late as 1931. The Comstock Cemetery is located on this property.

Hempstead's Diary, p. 32, says "Old Goodee Comstock died Feb. 21, 1713." This probably refers to Paltiah (Elderkin) Comstock.

"Dec. 17, 1697, Peeter Strickland receipts to his brother-in-law, Daniel Comstock, administrator of the estate of his father, Daniel Comstock, for twelve pounds, for Samuel Young and Thomas Halliox of Southold, L. I., as their wives' part of the estate of their father, Daniel Comstock, deceased."

Samuel Young and Thomas Halliox gave an order Oct. 9, 1696, to their mother, Paltiah Comstock, "to pay our patrimony due us, to our brother, Peter Strickland."

Southold, L. I., Sept. 15, 1688; Mary Comstock witness with Anna Youngs.

Inventory, Nov. 13, 1683, of estate of Daniel Comstock, late of New London, deceased. Includes 150 A. bought of Mr. Loveland and 100 A. above Sawmill brook, also 100 A. given by the town above Sawmill brook and forgotten in the inventory: 221 pounds, 17 shillings and 6 pence. Administration to widow "Paltiell" to bring up children, 'till Court order otherwise."

Daniel was referred to by some as "Gideon." He was a volunteer, 1676, in the Narragansett War.

6. CHRISTOPHER[2] COMSTOCK (William[1]) born about 1635; died Norwalk, Conn., Dec. 28, 1702; married Oct. 6, 1663, Hannah Platt, b. Milford, Conn., Oct. 1, 1643; bapt. there Oct. 6, 1643; d. Milford, Conn., after 1713, dau. of Richard and Mary Platt of Milford.

Christopher came from England and settled in Fairfield, Conn., in 1654. (Hinman, Early Puritan Settlers.) He later lived in Norwalk. His will, dated Norwalk, Dec. 22, 1701, proved Jan. 4, 1702-3, gives to wife Hannah; to son Moses when 21; to son Samuel; to dau. Hannah Comstock; to dau. Mercy Comstock; to grandson Daniel; wife and son Samuel executors.

Gravestone of #30. Mary Comstock St. John, in the old East Norwalk Cemetery.

On May 29, 1654, Christopher Comstock made affidavit about visiting good wife Knapp charged with witchcraft. She was executed.

On Jan. 27, 1661, Christopher, then of Fairfield, bought land of Thomas Betts.

Sept. 19, 1692, he was a member of a grand jury for witches. (See History of Stratford, p. 152.)

Christopher Comstock of Norwalk was nominated for freedman Oct. 10, 1667. Christopher, Oct. 14, 1686, was a deputy to the General Court. Jan. 16, 1694, he was one of a committee "to look out for and obtain a faithful minister" for Norwalk.

Hannah Comstock Fenn, dau. of Christopher, bought a bible in 1732 dated 1727 for 2 pounds, 15 shillings, which she says she "yearned in her youth." In 1740 she gave it to her brother Moses, who gave it to his dau. Hannah, who m. Phineas Hanford. She gave it to her granddaughter Hanna Handford who m. William Richards. The book then passed into the hands of William Richards, Jr., and now (1907) belongs to his daughter, Mrs. Charles Saylor.

Hinman says Christopher[2] brought with him from England a silver tankard with his coat of arms upon it. His great-grandson, Major Samuel Comstock, gave it to the church at Wilton, Conn., and it was melted up. Christopher was a sergeant in Colonial Militia.

Children all born in Norwalk.

9. WILLIAM[3] COMSTOCK (John,[2] William[1]) born Lyme, Conn., Jan. 9 1669; died March 15, 1728; married Sept. 10, 1695, Naomi Noyes (sometimes written Nyles or Niles) who d. 1761, dau. of Benjamin and Ruth Noyes.

The will of William[3] Comstock of Lyme, Jan. 4, 1726-7, gives to wife Nancy (Naomi); to four youngest daus.; Ruth to have a cow; dau. Abigail to keep what she has had; a cow to wife till dau. Mary is of age; lands to sons John, William, Samuel; eldest son John, executor. Inventory, April 27, 1728, 723 pounds, 1 sh., 7 pence.

Will of Naomi Comstock, widow of William Comstock of Lyme, of April 3, 1754, proved Feb. 10, 1761; gives to daus. Elizabeth McCrary, Phebe Clark, and Mary Beckwith; to granddau. Naomi Tiffany; mentions sons John, William, Samuel, and Abigail DeWolf's daus.; son Samuel, executor.

Agreement, Oct. 7, 1712, of William Comstock, John Read, and Ebenezer Coleman, about division of estate "of our father Benjamin Nyles, deceased, hath left to us his sons in law."

William, son of John Comstock of Lyme, March 1, 1683, apprentices himself 'till twenty-one to John Lay the younger. Signed by his mother Abigail Huntley and by Moses Huntley.

On Jan. 18, 1702-3, 12 acres were laid out to William Comstock on both sides of Bever (Beaver) River.

On Feb. 14, 1721-2, William and John Comstock agree about dividing line between them in Lyme, Conn.

12. JOHN[3] COMSTOCK (John,[2] William[1]) born Lyme, Conn., Sept. 31, 1676; died 1747-8; married 1712 Mary Elizabeth Colt of Lyme, dau. of John[2] Colt and Joanna (Smith) Lay Colt.

Will of Jan. 8, 1747-8, of John Comstock, gentleman of Lyme, makes bequests to dau. Esther; to six youngest sons, Joseph, Christopher, Jabez, Abner, Levi, and Asa. Wife Mary and son John, executors. John Comstock, 2nd, and Samuel Comstock, witnesses. Inventory, March 16, 1748, of Lieut. John Comstock of Lyme, deceased, 3687 pounds, 01 shillings.

John Comstock drew lot at Lyme town meeting April 21, 1702.

John Comstock and wife Mary deed to Joseph Lee, March 17, 1736-7. Highway laid out at Barnes' farm, by land of John and William Comstock, Feb. 13, 1721-2. Three acres laid out to John Comstock in Lyme, Dec. 15, 1729, lands of heirs of his brother William being mentioned.

The record in C. B. Comstock's Genealogy that John[3] married Mary Lee is obviously incorrect. Mary Lee was born Jan. 30, 1707-8, and therefore could not have had a son Jonathan in 1712. The Mary Lee mentioned married John,[4] son of Daniel.[3] (Family 37.)

The old Selden-Comstock family Bible, examined by the author, records John[3] Comstock's marriage to Mary Elizabeth Colt.

Family 9 § 14. SAMUEL[3] COMSTOCK (Samuel,[2] William[1]) born Providence, R. I., 1654; died Providence, May 27, 1727; married Nov. 22, 1678, Elizabeth Arnold, b. Watertown, Mass., 1645; d. Smithfield, R. I., Oct. 20, 1747, dau. of Thomas Arnold of Cheselbourne, Dorset, England, and Phebe (Parkhurst) Arnold.

Samuel Comstock, July 1, 1679, taxed 8d. In 1699, 1702, '07, '08 and 1711 he was deputy. May 6, 1702, he was appointed on a committee by Assembly to audit the General Treasurer's account and Colony debts. April, 1708, appointed on a committee to fix the rates of grain and other specie brought to the treasury.

On May 6, 1707, Ensign Comstock was a deputy from Providence.

He was called Captain at the time of his death.

August, 1710, Capt. Samuel Comstock ordered Henry Mowry of 2nd Company to impress men to go to Port Royal.

Capt. Richard Arnold, Samuel Comstock and others obtained, April 14, 1707, a grant of land at Woonsocket Hill, R. I. Samuel Comstock and Richard Arnold (whose sister Elizabeth Samuel married) were the first settlers at Woonsocket.

Samuel Comstock had a long controversy with the town of Mendon over ownership of 900 acres of land on present state line between Massachusetts and Rhode Island. On Nov. 21, 1698, the selectman of Mendon gave Samuel Comstock "free liberty to cut so much timber as will be necessary for their use, viz.: to build the Saw mill and Dam at the Falls upon the Great River."

Samuel resided at Providence, but in 1731 a part was set off as Smithfield.

Samuel Comstock's will of Dec. 21, 1726 was proved Sept. 18, 1727, executrix, wife Elizabeth. Inventory £296 6s. 1d.

Will of widow Elizabeth Comstock of Smithfield, April 10, 1745, proved Dec. 8, 1747, gives to sons Thomas, Daniel, Ichabod, John, Job, and Hazadiah; to daughter Elizabeth Sayles; to grandson David Comstock; to granddaughter Sarah Aldrich; to great granddaughter Anne Steer. Inventory, £415 13s. 8d.

Moses[3] Comstock's will of Jan. 24, 1754, proved Feb. 11, 1766, mentions wife Abigail, daus. Sarah and Phebe, unmarried; sons Abijah and Moses; daus. Abigail, Hannah, and Martha; grandchildren Ruth and Isabel, children of my deceased dau. Dinah Hanford; grandsons Moses Hanford, son of Samuel Hanford, and Moses Comstock Eells, son of Abijah, executor; David Comstock a witness. The will gives to his wife Abigail the life use and improvement of my negro man Caesar, my mulatto boy John, and negro woman Bett.

William Cullen Bryant, in his LETTERS OF A TRAVELER, tells the following story of Moses.[3] "He prided himself on the strict and literal fulfillment of his word. On one occasion he had a law suit with one of his neighbors before a justice of the peace, in which he was cast and ordered to pay ten shillings damages, and a shilling as the fees of the court. He paid the ten shillings and asked the justice whether he would allow him to pay the remaining when he next passed his door. The magistrate readily consented, but from that time old Comstock never went by his house. Whenever he had occasion to go to church or to any other place the direct road to which led by the justice's door, he was careful to take a lane which passed behind the dwelling and at some distance from it. The shilling remained unpaid up to the day of his death, and it was found that in his last will he had directed that his corpse should be carried by that lane to the place of interment."

His daughters Sarah and Phebe remained unmarried, and carried on a fine farm. They had a slave, Onesimus, bought for 39 pounds, Aug. 9, 1773. Both being mounted, he used to ride after Miss Phebe when she went into Norwalk. Phebe's will of Feb. 24, 1810, gives her servant Onesimus to her niece Phebe Comstock, and the will of the latter of Nov. 14, 1840, charges Darius Ferris with the care of Onesimus during life.

Town grants to Moses Comstock, March 14, 1705-6, 1½ A. on Long Island.

Moses Comstock and his mother Hannah, May 22, 1707, deed to his brother Samuel part of his father Christopher's home lot.

Feb. 2, 1725-6, Moses was appointed guardian of his nephews, Samuel and James Olmstead.

Moses Comstock of Norwalk, Dec. 11, 1749, deeded to son Moses land at Silver Mine Hill, bounded by son Abijah's.

Moses[3] Comstock resided at Norwalk.

Gravestone of Moses[3] Comstock.

Moses' daughters Sarah and Phebe lived together until old age, the one managing a fine farm, the other the house. Miss Phebe is the one mentioned in Bryant's "Letters of a Traveler."

Inscription on the gravestone of Moses[3] Comstock in the old Norwalk Cemetery:

"Here lyeth buried
the body of
Mr. Moses Comstock
Who departed this life
Janry the 18th, 1766 in ye
82nd year of his age.
" 'Behold and see all you who pass by
As you are now so once was I
As I am now so you shall be
Therefore prepare to follow me.' "

Moses[3] Comstock was a slave owner. In the Journal of American History, Vol. 1, No. I, is reprinted a bill of sale of a slave boy named Cesar to Moses Comstock which is here reproduced in its original quaint spelling and phrasing:

To all People to whom these preasents shall Come, greeting—

Know ye that I John Davice of the Town of Bastable in the County of Bastable in ye Province of ye Machejusett Bay, for and in Consideration of the sum of fifty and eight pounds in Current Money of the Colony of Connecticut: to me in hand Payed by Moses Comstock of the town of Norwalk in the County Fairfield in ye Colony of Connecticut; have given granted bargained sold and by these presents Delivered unto the aforesaid Moses Comstock a Cartain Negro boy (aged about twelve years) Caled and known by the Name of Cesar: for him to have and to hold said Negro boy to him the said Moses Comstock, his heirs, Executors, Administrators and assignes during the term of said Negros Natural Life; and in witness wheareof I heare hereunto sett my hand and seal this 26th day of April Anno 1721.

Signed sealed and delivered
In presence of
Berys A. Lines. John Davice. (Seal)
Jacob Hays.

This slave passed to Moses' son Abijah. In 1773 Cesar had accumulated a small amount of personal belongings, and he executed a will which is reproduced under Family 52.

Caesar was admitted to membership in the Wilton Church in 1741, the only Negro to be admitted.

A record preserved by Elijah Selden Comstock, and written by his grandfather Feb. 15, 1848, states that Asa Comstock was born in 1732 and died in 1832 at slightly over a hundred years. This is probably correct, as the entry in General Comstock's genealogy (d. 1817—age 104) would have fixed his birth in 1713, or before his brother John, whereas it is positively known that Asa was the youngest child.

Asa was a farmer, and town officer.

Samuel Wilkinson, whose daughter Zibiah married Ichabod,[4] was a Quaker. Before his death, 1726-7, he selected a smooth stone and cut his initials on it, and it was erected at his grave. Mr. Comstock, a Quaker preacher, deemed it a vain thing, and broke it in pieces. One hundred and forty years later a great-grandson of Samuel Wilkinson placed the pieces on his grave in the old Quaker burying ground in Woonsocket, R. I. The Quaker preacher was probably Samuel,[4] son of Samuel[3] Comstock of Providence.

Abijah[4] Comstock owned a slave, which had come to him from his father Moses. This slave, named Cesar, made a will in 1773 which sheds interesting light on the customs of the times and the paternalistic relationship existing between master and slave in that family. The will, which was admitted to probate in Norwalk, Conn., was worded exactly as follows:

I CESAR Negro Man of Abijah Comstock of Norwalk in the County of Fairfield and Colony of Connecticut, Being of sound Mind and Memory And Calling To Mind my Mortallity, Knowing it is Appointed for all Men once to Die With the approbation of my Above s'd Master Do make and ordain this my Last Will and Testament. Mark

It is interesting to note that, although he could not write his name, most of Cesar's possessions consisted of books. The two persons, "Dwer" and "Belinda," whom he mentions were fellow slaves. As Abijah's daughter Ruth was not mentioned she probably had died before that date.

250. JOHN[5] COMSTOCK (Kingsland,[4] Kingsland,[3] Daniel,[2] William[1]) born New London, Conn., Oct. 20, 1722; died prior to Oct., 1787; married Norwich, Conn., March 23, 1737? Margaret (Peggy) Vibber, b. No. Parish, New London, Nov. 20, 1726, dau. of John and Johannah (Williams) Vibber. If the dates are correct she married at 11 years of age. Margaret Vibber Comstock was living in Exeter Township, Pa., Dec., 1810. The record that John[5] married Sarah Crasy who d. Cheshire, Conn., Jan. 28, 1779, cannot be correct, as Margaret and her son Peleg Comstock sold lands after John's death.

John Comstock came from Norwich, West Farms, Conn., to Wyoming, Pa. He was an Ensign in the First Alarm Company and was engaged in the "Wyoming Massacre." He escaped by concealing himself behind a fallen log. (Brewster's History, Kingston, Pa., p. 46.) He was one of the "Forty," or first settlers at Kingston and was on the roll June 2, 1769.

The "Harvey Book," p. 330, states that John Comstock, Cyprian Lothrop and Captain Alden, representing a number of Connecticut proprietors in the Susquehanna purchase, located and laid out the town of Newport, west of and adjoining Hanover (Pa.).

313. SAMUEL[5] COMSTOCK (Nathan,[4] Samuel,[3] Christopher,[2] William[1]) born Wilton, Conn., June, 1740; died Wilton, Dec. 1, 1824; married, Wilton, Dec. 26, 1765, Mercy Mead, b. 1741; d. 1816.

Samuel Comstock enlisted July 10, 1775, was made Captain July 10, 1776, and Major Oct. 10, 1783. He served at White Plains, Valley Forge and Yorktown. He also saw service in the French and Indian War.

His grave marker gives the year of his birth as 1739, as does also the C. B. Comstock Genealogy of 1907, but an account of his life and character published in the "Norwalk Gazette" of Dec. 21, 1824, only twenty days after his death, states that he was born in June, 1740. This account further says that he was attached throughout the (Revolutionary) War to the division of the Commander-in-Chief.

Will of Samuel Comstock of Wilton, March 6, 1821, proved Dec. 27, 1824, gives to heirs of his wife Mercy, deceased; to four sisters, namely Sarah, wife of Isaiah Gregg; Mabel, wife of John Hanford; Mary, widow of Blacklock Jesup, deceased; and Eunice, widow of late Jeremiah Heckock of Sheffield, Mass.; to nephews Nathan, William and Samuel Comstock, sons of my brother Aaron, deceased; to nephew Nathan, son brother Strong; to church a "Tankard descended through a long line of venerable

556. MOSES[6] COMSTOCK (Azariah,[5] Daniel,[4] Samuel,[3] Samuel,[2] William[1]) born Smithfield, R. I., Nov. 9, 1737; married Bethia DuBois.

Moses probably moved with his father Azariah to Richmond, N. H.

Bassett's "History of Richmond, N. H." says "Azariah moved from Smithfield, R. I., to Richmond in 1762; had son Moses who was a mighty hunter, who took with him the skin of a large panther he had killed when he moved to N. Y. about 1784, after selling his land to Buffum." Moses Comstock was a resident of Richmond, N. H., Jan. 31, 1786, but had moved to Pa. by 1790.

The "History of Susquehanna Co., Pa.," says the first white people that settled in Harmony were Moses Comstock and his family. About 1787 they came from R. I. into what was then a vast and unexplored wilderness. Comstock built a log hut between the Starucca and Canawacta Creeks. The land Mr. Comstock took possession of he purchased from the Commonwealth of Connecticut. The same land was claimed by Col. Timothy Pickering (of Mass.) who purchased it of Pennsylvania. In 1801 Col. Pickering with his son Timothy, Jr., came and dispossessed Abner, the son of Moses Comstock.

Nathan Comstock moved from Farmington, Ontario Co., N. Y., and settled on a tract of land on the "Old Niagara Road", now (1902) partly in the bounds of the city of Lockport, N. Y., prior to 1816. An aged lady says of him: "a stocky, niee looking man, light complexioned, deliberate in his movements, slow of speech, a Quaker, and used the plain language. He was always good natured."

At the first town meeting in April 7, 1818, he was elected one of the overseers of the poor, one of the commissioners of highways, one of the inspectors, one of the fence reviewers and overseer of the highways. He was supervisor, 1822-3.

In 1822 the Erie Canal was laid out and passed through the farm of Nathan Comstock, not far from the house. In 1824 Lockport was laid off and made Mr. Comstock a resident of Lockport. The Nathan Comstock farm became the Odd Fellows Home of Western, N. Y.

Letters of administration issued on Nathan Comstock's estate, Oct. 15, 1829, to sons Stephen and Daniel.

In 1790 Nathan Comstock's father, and his brothers Otis and Darius were residents of Lockport. After the canal was built his brothers Joseph and Jared moved there and became (with Darius) proprietors of a large part of the present upper town, the lower town having grown up on what was Nathan's farm. First seven children born in Palmyra, N. Y.

Torrington, Conn., March 15, 1772; d. Sept. 30, 1843, dau. of Samuel and Ruth (Gillet) Austin.

Serajah Comstock was a Revolutionary soldier, having enlisted at a little over sixteen years of age. He became dissatisfied for some unknown reason and left the service, to enter in another division. This caused his name to be entered as a deserter in the service which he left, but the fact that he enlisted immediately in another troop was evidence of his loyalty to the revolutionary cause.

He served in the sieges of Chambly and St. John, and the battles of Longuevil, Lake Champlain, Kingsbridge and Yorktown.

According to his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sylvester Comstock, he was a quiet, reserved man, of some education, and was teaching school at the time of his marriage to Climena Austin.

Serajah and his wife moved from Norfolk, Conn., to Camden, Oneida Co., N. Y., about 1805, and thereafter to Williamstown, Oswego Co., N. Y. Most of his time was probably spent in farming.

After his death his widow married, January, 1827, Reuben Austin, a cousin, who d. New Haven, N. Y., June 17, 1837. She was allowed pension on account of serviee of Serajah Comstock, on an application executed Oct. 7, 1842, at which time she was 70 years old, and resided with her eighth child, Sylvester Comstock, at Victory, N. Y.

1780: Serajah Comstoek bought 30 acres of land in Norfolk, Conn.

1818: Serajah Comstoek states under oath that he is 58 years old, a resident of Williamstown, and answers to a war pension claim.

His marriage to Climena Austin was solemnized by Esquire Pettibone of Torringford, Conn.

2264. WILLIAM[7] OGILVIE COMSTOCK

William Ogilvie Comstock was with the house of Howland and Aspinwall, in which his brother, Samuel W., was a partner. This firm had large shipping interests, and agencies in many parts of the world. In 1839 William O. Comstock sailed around the horn in the "Natchez," and stayed for four years in South America. In 1843 he left there for China to take charge of that end of the firm's business, and he remained in China until 1850. While there he kept his books in Spanish, as the house did a large business with old Mexico and the South American ports.

The years 1850 and 1851 he spent in traveling through Europe, Africa, Asia and Egypt. He remained with Howland, Aspinwall & Co. until 1856 when he moved to Boston. There he formed the shipping house of Bush and Comstock, which had large interests in China. Two of his brothers, Cornelius and Walter, were associated with him in the firm.

In 1872 he withdrew from the shipping trade and formed a company which engaged in the manufacture of spruce lumber. His mill was located at Turner's Fall's, Mass., on the Connecticut River. He enlarged this plant so as to cut some ten millions of feet of spruce per annum. Children born in Boston, Mass.

3973. HENRY[8] SMITH COMSTOCK (John[7] Beardsley, Serajah,[6] Samuel,[5] Samuel,[4] Samuel,[3] Daniel,[2] William[1]) born New Haven, Oswego Co., N. Y., Dec. 29, 1831; d. Quincy, Ill., March 15, 1902; married (1st) Hannibal, Mo., July 29, 1859 Emma Genette Terpining, b. Munson, Ill., Feb. 5, 1945; d. Chicago, Ill., between 1895 and 1901, dau. of Josiah R. and Elizabeth Terpining; divorced; married (2nd) Cambridge, Ill., July 6, 1889 Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Roth) Schmidt, b. Buffalo, Iowa, Nov. 25, 1865; d. Kewanee, Ill., June 16, 1924. After the death of Henry Smith Comstock his widow m. Olin Johnson of Kewanee, Ill.

Henry Smith Comstock was educated in the public schools of Michigan and in an Academy at Birmingham. He was a teacher in the public schools of Henry County, Ill., for many years, and in 1869 became County Superintendent of Schools, a post which he held until 1873. In December, 1881 he was appointed by Governor Cullom as a member of the State Board of Education. He served as Town Clerk in Munson, Ill., for five years, and as School Trustee for six years. During the Civil War he enlisted, June, 1862, and served as Second Lieutenant in Company I, 112th Reg't., Illinois Infantry; ;Col. T. J. Henderson commanding. (See U. S. Biographical Dictionary, Illinois, 1883, p. 182).

Henry S. Comstock was the author of a book entitled "Hasty Recollections of a Busy Life," which was published privately at Cambridge, Ill., in 1896. In this occurs a number of interesting word pictures of the pioneering days in Oakland County, Michigan.

To quote a few passages: "The tamarack, spruce and hemlocks were distributed over Oakland, Lapeer, Shiwassee and the northern counties of Michigan. The huckleberries and cranberries—low bush and high bush, black and blue—grew luxuriantly on the 'plains' and in the swamps, and we have accompanied parties who from sun to sun have filled a large wagon bed with the luscious berries.—In 1844 was the 'raising' of our large house, all of the lumber of which was sawed in our father's mills.—It is a large two and a half story of many departments and at the great raising the men were there from far and near with pike poles—and when the strong oak frame had all arisen in its majesty"—etc. Elsewhere he mentions that deer, bear, wolves and wildcat were numerous in the district, and that the country between his father's mills and Pontiac was heavily timbered.

Samuel W. Comstock was for 45 years a manufacturer and wholesaler of spruce lumber in New England, prior to his retirement in 1929.

He has been more active than any other member of the family in genealogical research, and for years has searched all available sources for records of the early families. The accumulation and compiling of this material has resulted in the preservation for posterity of hundreds of records that would otherwise have been lost. This data he has unselfishly shared with all who asked for it. For his untiring and painstaking effort in this, one of his many interests, future generations of Comstocks owe him a debt of gratitude impossible to estimate.

In addition, he is a keen numismatist, and was for years a leading philatelist. His Club affiliations include: the Greenfield (Mass.), Club; Country Club of Greenfield; Canoe Club of Greenfield; Coaching Club of Greenfield; Natural History Society of Greenfield; American Numismatic Association; New England Historic Genealogical Society; Essay-Proof Society and New York Historical Society.

Mr. Comstock lived for many years at Allston, Mass. His present address (1948) is 42 Nells Rd., Devon, Conn.

Bill Comstock, Ace of Scouts

IN THE PIONEER DAYS OF THE EARLY WEST, Bill Comstock was an illustrious young man — a man of mystery. Because of his reticence, little was then known of his origin and background. Many false rumors had been circulated concerning him. It was said that he came from Kentucky, and that he was part Cherokee Indian.

Bill, whose full name was William Averill Comstock (No. 5638, Family 967), was born in 1842 at Comstock, Michigan, a town named for his father. He came of good and highly respected parentage. His father was "General" Horace Hawkins Comstock, and his mother was Sarah Sabina Cooper, a niece of the famous novelist James Fenimore Cooper. Sarah's home was in Cooperstown, New York, where they were married in 1833.

Bill's father owned large tracts of land in Comstock Township, and Kalamazoo, Michigan. He was a wealthy and prominent citizen, a lawyer, and a politician. He was the first Senator to be elected from Kalamazoo County. This was in 1835. He was reelected in 1837 and 1838; and he also served in 1849 as a member of the House of Representatives from Otsego, Michigan. His title of "General" was probably given in courtesy by his associates as there seems to be no official record of his having that rank. It was understood that he had considerable military experience before moving to Michigan. An historic record of Captain Comstock, in command of Infantry Troops located at Cooperstown, New York, in 1827, doubtless refers to him.

Sarah Sabina Cooper Comstock, the "General's" first wife, was a distinguished gentlewoman. The Township of Cooper in Kalamazoo County, Michigan was named for her.

After Sarah's death in 1846 (when Bill, her youngest child, was four years old) "General" Comstock moved to Otsego, and married again. Later he moved to New York and married a third time. He died intestate at Ossining, New York in 1861. His estate was appraised at less than a thousand dollars. The Surrogate's record at White Plains, New York, shows that his minor son, William A. Comstock, was at that time of "Pike's Peak, Nebraska Territory," and that Hiram P. Rowel was appointed his guardian.

Bill's oldest sister, Sarah Sabina Comstock, married Judge Eleazer Wakeley, Associate Judge of Nebraska and a member of the Constitutional Convention, when Bill was twelve years old. A claim by the Wisconsin State Historical Society and the statement of Colonel Homer Wheeler, that Bill was born in Wisconsin, can be explained by assuming that he was living in the Wakeley household in Wisconsin during his sister's residence there, 1854 to 1857.

Bill apparently had little formal education. He probably spent his early boyhood with his father; but later was under the guidance of Sarah, who was a graduate of Eames School of Kalamazoo.

Perhaps Bill's love of adventure, Indian lore, and woodcraft was inspired by the writings of his celebrated great uncle, James Fenimore Cooper. Certain it is that he left for the plains at an early age, and by the time that he reached twenty-one years of age, had acquired an enviable reputation as a hunter and guide. He had served as a Pony Express rider at the same time as Wild Bill Hickok and Bill Cody. He had learned the Indian dialects of the region, could follow trail signs with the best of the redskins, and, in the territory adjacent to Fort Wallace, his prowess with a rifle had earned for him the title of "Buffalo Bill." He was familiar with every foot of the buffalo range between the Arkansas and the Platte and had regularly supplied the soldiery of Fort Wallace with buffalo meat. His knowledge of the Indian languages made him invaluable as an interpreter in the numerous councils and conferences held by the army officers and Indian chiefs.

By the time that Bill had reached the age of twenty-six years he was Chief of Scouts and Interpreter at Fort Wallace. He was the favorite scout of General Sheridan and General Custer, and was nationally known as the "Ace of Scouts."

Being a man of few words, with an even disposition, Bill was safeguarded against the sort of shooting affairs so common on the frontier in his day. Even more of a protection, was his reputation for being lightning quick on the draw and deadly accurate with a revolver. Certainly on one occasion this reputation was proven to be well founded.

A contractor by the name of Weightman, or Wyatt, agreed to pay Bill a certain sum if he were shown the locations where sufficient wood could be cut to fulfill a contract. Bill led him to the locations, one of which was Big Timbers, about forty miles from the Post. Several hundred cords were cut and delivered; but the contractor failed to make good his promise to Bill. Weightman had frequently boasted that he was a member of the Quadrille Guerillas which sacked Lawrence, Kansas, August 21, 1863, and he posed generally as a "bad man." Such actions had aroused strong feeling against Weightman, and apparently Bill decided that the time had been reached for a "show-down."

One day the Post trader received word from his friend Bill that on the following morning he would bring a "black tail" for his dinner. Bill frequently brought in game, so the trader supposed that he would be given a black tail deer next day. But it seems that Bill intended to warn him in this cryptic way that trouble was brewing.

Bill timed it the next morning so that he and the "bad man" met on the porch of the trader's store. An old Indian fighter, Charles E. Chase, claimed to be an eye witness, and later reported, "Comstock got Weightman in the store and both started to draw at the same time . . . Comstock fired four shots before Weightman ever pulled the trigger. When they turned Weightman over, every one of Comstock's shots had hit in his heart and the four holes could have been covered with a silver dollar."

The Commander of the Post had Bill arrested and turned over to the civil authorities at Fort Hays, Kansas, for trial. When arraigned before the court, and asked by Judge M. S. Joyce how he would plead, Bill answered, "Guilty, sir." The Judge asked him if he did not wish to alter his plea. The scout replied, "No, sir." The Judge immediately exclaimed, "Ye are a damned fool for tellin' it. I discharge ye for want of ividence."

An account of this and other thrilling episodes in the life of Bill Comstock are recorded in Colonel Homer W. Wheeler's book, "Buffalo Days," and also in the Collections of the Kansas State Historical Society, Vol. 17.

The title of "Buffalo Bill," which the officers of Fort Wallace had bestowed on Bill, had also been used by the officials and workers on the western extension of the Kansas Pacific Railroad along the Smoky Hill River, to designate their hunter, William F. Cody. The Goddard Brothers had contracted to feed the railroad laborers and had hired Cody to hunt buffalo for them. Somehow discussion arose as to who was the original "Buffalo Bill." It was finally decided that a purse of five hundred dollars should be raised, and a hunting contest staged between Comstock and Cody to settle the dispute. And so it was that one of the most spectacular contests ever staged on this continent took place.

A full account of this hunt was published in the Saturday Evening Post of December 24, 1929 in an article entitled "The Shaggy Legion." A somewhat similar account, written by Elmo Scott Watson was syndicated and appeared in a number of newspapers some years ago, under the title of "Who was the Original Buffalo Bill."

Cody, who had been hunting buffalo steadily for months, had his horse trained to a hair, and the animal had been kept in daily practice. Bill's mount was a good buffalo horse but one not used so systematically. Both men were excellent shots but the disparity in their mounts was a serious handicap to Comstock.

The final tally, at the end of the kill, was Comstock, forty-eight; Cody, sixty-nine. Cody won the purse and became officially the only "Buffalo Bill."

Notwithstanding this defeat, many of the plainsmen considered Bill Comstock the better man. Charles E. Chase's published comment attests to that feeling. "Bill Comstock could take Buffalo Bill out at night and lose him. Cody was a good man, but Comstock — and I am not alone in this — was a better man." Chase knew both men intimately, and was well qualified to judge.

In a short article, with a picture of Bill and two other of General Custer's famous scouts, Harper's weekly of June 29, 1867 said of him, ". . . his qualifications as an interpreter and scout are said by those best qualified to judge to be unsurpassed by any white man on the plains. He is, moreover, a man of tried bravery, and a first rate shot."

A few months after the famous buffalo hunting contest, Bill Comstock and another scout known as "Sharp" Grover were ordered to visit the camp of Chief Turkey Leg of the Cheyennes (who was a special friend of both scouts) to determine if any of the Cheyennes had taken part in a murderous raid in the Saline Valley. Turkey Leg and his warriors were camped on the headwaters of the Solomon. The scouts were coolly received, and Turkey Leg finally told them that they had better leave, since his young men were greatly excited and he could not control them.

Accordingly they started out with an escort which included the Chief's son and six other young warriors, who professed the deepest friendship for them. As recounted by "Sharp" Grover, when they were a short distance on their way, several other Indians joined them. The escort left, but the new arrivals continued on with the scouts. As they were riding along, conversing in a friendly manner, two or three of the Indians dropped back and began firing. Comstock was instantly killed, and Grover was shot through the back and left lung. The Indians fled after the shooting. Grover made his way to the nearest railroad station, and was brought into the Post.

General Bankhead sent out a detachment to bring the body of Comstock into the Post, and he was buried there. The grave was the third one south of the north east corner of the Post Cemetery.

There were other interpretations of the killing of Bill Comstock. Colonel Wheeler states that "Some people had an idea that Grover killed Comstock to obtain his position." Apparently that was the opinion of several of the officers at Fort Wallace. Samuel Willett Comstock, in a letter dated October 18, 1928, says, "He was shot by his pal in the fall of 1868, the deed attributed to the Indians." There are some points in Grover's account that do not seem plausible. If Grover was shot through the back and left lung, how does it happen that, just a few days after the shooting, he "joined Colonel Forsyth at Fort Wallace and went with him as scout on an expedition to Sheridan," as recorded in the Kansas Historical Collections, Volume 15, page 541. Men do not recover in a few days from a shot through the back and lung.

Perhaps it is significant that "Sharp" Grover came into possession of the Rose Creek Ranch not long after the killing. This ranch belonged to Bill Comstock by squatters rights, and was a valuable property. Possibly the nickname of "Sharp" which was given to Abner T. Grover by his associates was more appropriate than they knew.

In the old Fort Wallace Post Cemetery, in the state of Kansas, Bill Comstock's body still lies, so far as we know, in a grave unmarked and unhonored. He met his death on August 27, 1868, in his twenty-sixth year. For the winning of the west, in such a short span of time, few men did more.

The Comstock Lode and Henry Tompkins Paige Comstock

IN THE HISTORY OF SILVER MINING THERE IS probably no area in the world more celebrated than the Comstock Lode.

This rich vein of combined silver and gold, located in Storey County, Nevada, produced three hundred and forty million dollars in silver during the thirty-year period of 1860 to 1890. In its peak year of 1877 alone, it yielded thirty-eight million dollars.

The story of its discovery and development is a fascinating saga of the early west told again in three recently published and widely circulated books. The first, and most important, is a reprint of the classic account published by "Dan De Quille" in 1875 — "History of the Big Bonanza." Dan De Quille was the nom de plume of William Wright, staff writer for the Virginia City "Enterprise," and the one best qualified to record the story. Unfortunately his book had very little sale, and is now a scarce item. The reprint, published by Alfred A. Knopf, and edited by Oscar Lewis and Robert Glass Cleland, is titled "The Big Bonanza," and makes this valuable source material generally available.

As a readily accessible historic account, George D. Lyman's "Saga of the Comstock Lode," issued in 1946 by Charles Scribner's Sons, is the book of next importance.

The third work is C. B. Glasscock's book, "The Big Bonanza," published by Binfords & Mort in 1931.

All three of these works give in detail accounts of the discovery and early development of the Lode when Henry Tompkins Paige Comstock was there. They all agree concerning his eccentricities and peculiar quirks of character. He is pictured as an illiterate prospector given to much boasting, with a vivid imagination that had little regard for facts. He was said to possess streaks of kindliness and impractical generosity, but these were interspersed with volatile outbursts. An account of Comstock's activities prior to his appearance in the Washoe mining district of Nevada, and of his later experiences after leaving Virginia City is not recorded. In Chapter X of Dan De Quille's book, there is a letter written by H. T. P. Comstock in which he recounts his wanderings and various activities. It was written from Butte City, Montana, when he was nearly fifty years of age, and is so full of obvious errors and bombastic imaginings as to be utterly worthless from the standpoint of history. It does, however, give a few clues as to his earlier and later activities, some of which have been in part confirmed from authentic sources. In this letter he gives his full name as Henry Thomas Paige Comstock. Perhaps he purposely substituted Thomas for Tompkins; but it is likely that he forgot he had been given his mother's family name.

Henry Tompkins Paige Comstock was born in Trenton, Ontario, Canada, in the year 1820. His father was Noah Bird Comstock who is listed as the head of Family 723 in this genealogy. His mother was Catherine Tompkins, daughter of Stephen Tompkins, Jr., of Watertown, New York.

Contrary to statements usually made, he came of good stock on both sides of the family. His father was in the lumber and hotel business, and had moved in early life to Cooperstown, New York. Later he went to Ontario, Canada, then to Cleveland, Ohio, and finally to Blissfield, Michigan.

Henry was the fifth in a family of twelve children. Apparently he had a profound distaste for learning. It was stated by his friend and partner, Emanuel Penrod, that he could not read nor write.

At a very early age he was bound out to the American Fur Company and according to his statement "trapped all over Canada, Michigan, and Indiana." It is claimed that he served in the Black Hawk War, but if so he must have been about the youngest recruit. He was only twelve years of age when Chief Black Hawk surrendered. He served in the Mexican War, and, according to his statement, ". . . all through the Patriot War in Canada."

The drift of the American forty-niners into California found him in the gold country, where he probably prospected for a time without success, as the next reference to him is as a herder, driving a large band of sheep into the Carson Valley. The Piute Indians got most of his sheep and left him destitute; but the hardy Mormon pioneers of the district took him in, and eventually he became one of the band of rough and ready prospectors who were washing gold in the stream beds of the area. Most of these men knew more about "tarantula juice" (whiskey) and faro than they did about mineralogy.

There were, however, two young easterners, Allen and Hosea Grosch, in the district who were competent mineralogists. They had come from Utica, New York, where their father, A. B. Grosch, was a Universalist clergyman. In the fall of 1855, they discovered an outcropping on the slopes of Mt. Davidson, which yielded a bluish ore testing high in silver. They kept their discovery secret from all but their father, and endeavored to raise capital for the development of their claim. Failing in this, they worked in the gold diggings in the hope of obtaining enough of the yellow metal to start their larger project.

Hosea Grosch injured his foot, and died of tetanus in 1857. In an effort to raise funds, Allen and an associate, Richard Burke, decided to take samples of their ore and maps of their claim to California. Henry T. P. Comstock was left in charge of the Grosch cabin wherein was housed their various effects, including a locked chest full of ore samples, charts, and documents.

Grosch and Burke began their trek over the Sierran trails but were trapped by the December storms. After incredible hardships and the loss of all their equipment they were finally rescued more dead than alive by miners from Last Chance, Placer County. Their feet and hands were frozen, and gangrene soon set in. There was no surgeon in camp, and the miners felt that only an amputation would save their lives. The operation was performed by men who were skilled in the use of pick and shovel. Allen Grosch died on December 19, 1857. And so the two brothers who were the real discoverers of the Comstock Lode were gone. Richard Burke lived; and after his recovery returned to his native Canada.

When Henry T. P. Comstock learned of Allen Grosch's death he decided that it was his right to examine the contents of the locked chest in their cabin. In fact, from that time on, he claimed that the cabin was his personal property. When the chest was opened and found to contain only samples of ores with to him unintelligible charts and documents, Comstock flew into a rage, and destroyed everything that seemed to have any bearing on the Grosch brothers.

All that he could understand was that the peculiar blue ore had been found by the brothers somewhere on Mt. Davidson, presumably not far from the cabin, and that it was rich in gold. He had no inkling that it was almost pure sulfide of silver. Thereafter Comstock spent much time in visiting the various diggings of the local miners and prospectors, in search of that particular blue ore.

On January 28, 1859, four miners working on a site at Gold Hill uncovered some bluish rock which yielded considerable gold. Comstock heard of the strike, and immediately looked them up. He was convinced that they had found the blue stuff he had been seeking, and tried to talk himself into a partnership on the basis of some shady rights that he claimed to have on the area. The miners were not convinced; but a portion of the site next to the discovery was unclaimed and Comstock filed on what remained.

The four miners who had located the Gold Hill outcropping were James Fennimore, known as "Old Virginny"; John Bishop, known as "Big French John"; Aleck Henderson, and Jack Yount. They had actually uncovered one end of the Lode, but not the main vein which had previously been found by the Grosch brothers.

In working the Gold Hill deposits, Comstock and the other miners had great difficulty in separating the gold from the "blue stuff," and spent much energy in loudly cursing it as they discarded great quantities of silver salts worth many times the value of the gold recovered.

One June evening, Comstock learned that two prospectors named Pete O'Riley and Pat McLaughlin were mining in Spanish Ravine near a spring where he had previously staked off a claim "for grazing purposes." Full of "sound and fury" he straightway hied himself over to the diggings. There were Pete and Pat, making their last cleanup for the day, with a mound of gold beside them. There was the real bluish ore!

Comstock stormed and threatened, and finally talked himself and his partner, "Manny" Penrod into an interest in the claim. He also wrangled an additional hundred feet for himself on the basis of his water rights.

The claims thus staked out developed later into the famous Ophir and Mexican Mines which yielded millions of dollars in silver. To the ignorant men who found them, men interested only in gold and cursing the "blue stuff" that clogged their rockers, they brought only a pittance. Pat McLaughlin sold his interest for three thousand, five hundred dollars. Emanuel Penrod let his go for eight thousand, five hundred dollars. Pete O'Riley held on longer than the others, and finally sold out for forty thousand dollars, and eventually died an insane pauper.

Comstock traded an old blind horse and a bottle of whiskey for a one-tenth share owned by "Old Virginny," but later sold all of his holdings to Judge James Walsh of Grass Valley for eleven thousand dollars and lost it all trying to run a store in Carson City. All of the original locators of the Lode died in poverty.

O'Riley and McLaughlin are generally credited with the discovery, on June 12, 1859, of the famous Lode. Actually theirs was a rediscovery of the Grosch brothers' lost claim. "Old Virginny" and his associates would, with equal right, be credited with the prior discovery on January 28, 1859, since their claims were located at one end of the vein.

Comstock's day-dreaming of his wealth, and loud boasting of his exploits kept him so busy that he had no time to bake sour dough bread as did most of the miners. He therefore made pancakes, and became so adept at tossing them that he came to be known in the diggings as "Old Pancake." He talked so loud and long of "his mine" that the people of the district began calling it the "Comstock." Ever since that time it has borne the name of the Comstock Lode.

In 1862, after his failure as a merchant, Comstock left Nevada and followed the life of a prospector and road builder in eastern Oregon, Idaho, and Montana. His hope was always for the discovery of another Big Bonanza. He did make several strikes of minor importance. Bancroft states that he and Lytle opened the first quartz vein in which free gold was visible on the Powder River; and that he surveyed a road from there which was shorter and better than the old one. On August 11, 1862, he discovered a vein from which he took four hundred and fifty dollars in gold, according to the San Francisco Bulletin of August 27, 1862. He was apparently active as a miner in various sections of Idaho and Montana. He accompanied the Big Horn Expedition which planned to explore and prospect the Yellowstone country.

In 1870 he was called to Nevada as a witness for the Ophir Company, and was well paid for his testimony. He was said to have had considerable money on his person when he returned to Bozeman, Montana. Accounts differ as to the cause of his death there on September 29, 1870. On his grave marker in the Bozeman Cemetery it is recorded that he "committed suicide by shooting himself through the head."

Many who knew him believe that he was murdered for the money he carried. Such an opinion is expressed in a letter written by his old friend and partner, Emanuel Penrod, to Samuel Willett Comstock. The original of this letter is here reproduced. It gives an interesting, though biased appraisal of the character of Henry Tompkins Paige Comstock by one of the original owners of the "Comstock Mine." Penrod's reference to Comstock's "wife living in style in Cal." is pure fiction. The true story of Comstock's purchase of a wife from a Mormon immigrant, and of her running away twice with other men, is told in Chapter IX of Dan De Quille's "Big Bonanza."

In the Bozeman, Montana, Cemetery "Old Pancake" rests in peace, while the silver tinkle of his name is heard around the world wherever the Comstock Lode is mentioned. Generous, boastful, kindly, illiterate, the restless spirit of the "Magnificent Liar of Washoe" lives on in the ghost towns and crumbling mine shafts of the old west. Gone is the man who gave away more gold than most
